

SEARCHING FOR THE “WOW!”

The art, craft and joy of writing about science

Amy Ellis Nutt

Pulitzer-Prize winning reporter and science writer at The Washington Post

Thursday, February 15
7 p.m.
101 Jordan Hall of Science

Join us for an evening with Washington Post science writer Amy Ellis Nutt. She will share how to cultivate the sense of wonder that is at the heart of all great science articles, as well as describe the techniques for writing them. Nutt is the author of three books, including two New York Times' bestsellers, and was awarded the Pulitzer Prize in Feature Writing in 2011 as an enterprise reporter at The Star-Ledger in Newark, N.J.

Nutt has taught at Columbia and Princeton Universities and was a Nieman Fellow in Journalism at Harvard.

Supported by the IBM Corporate Lecture Series and the College of Science

Reception to follow the lecture.

UNIVERSITY OF
NOTRE DAME

SCIENCE